ASHEVILLE AND VICINITY.

["It is a noble region, in which Nature has uplifted her mighty monuments, and with a setting of rare loveliness."]

SCENE ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

[For assistance in compiling this sketch the writer is deeply indebted to the very valuable articles in the Woman's Edition of The Citizen, November, 1895, by Misses Fanny L. Patton, Anna C. Aston, and others; to D. K. Bennett's Chronology of North Carolina; to "Asheville, Where It Is," etc., and to various other articles, pamphlets, and friends.]

Buncombe county, named in honor of Colonel Edward Buncombe, of Revolutionary fame, was set off by act of the General Assembly as a separate county in 1791. The "Old State of Buncombe," as it was known for years, then included the present county of the name, with Haywood (cut off in 1808), Macon (1828), Yancey (in part 1833), Henderson (1838), Cherokee (1839), Madison (1850), Clay, Swain, Graham, and part of Transylvania. In 1795 the boundary line between Buncombe and Tennessee was made. Robert Henry, who was the teacher of the first school in Buncombe, was one of the surveyors. The present area of the county is about 400 square miles.

Well-founded tradition relates that the location of the county seat of Buncombe was at first a difficult question to decide, the present site being finally chosen on account of the "royal" treatment given the authorities by a saloon-keeper, whose establishment was located on what is now South Main, near the city limits. The county seat was created in 1794, and was given the name of Morris, which was the next year changed to Morristown, and shortly afterwards to Asheville, in honor of Governor Samuel Ashe, of Revolutionary fame, who in 1795 was elected Governor of the State.

["There are, here and there, stupendous precipices, as, for instance, 'Whiteside' and 'Cæsar's Head.'"]

SCENE ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The first county court is said to have been held at the house of William Davidson at the Gum Spring, now on the Vanderbilt estate, David Vance being the first clerk of the court.

Of the early settlers of Asheville and vicinity only brief mention can be made of some. William Mills, born on James River, Virginia, emigrated to the Block House on the Catawba, then to Green River in 1766. Mills' Gap, said to be the first wagon road across the Blue ridge, and Mills' river were named for him. He is said to have named Bearwallow, Ball Top, Sugar Loaf, Lookout, and many other adjacent mountains.

Many thrilling adventures are related of him in connection with the Indians, as also of Colonel Daniel Smith, who settled at the mouth of the Swannanoa in 1785. Smith is said to have killed more than one hundred Indians. His son, James McC. Smith, was the first white child born west of the Blue Ridge in the limits of North Carolina. James Smith married a daughter of Colonel John Patton, settled at Asheville, and merchandised and farmed until his death in 1856. John Patton, father of Montraville Patton, settled in 1790, making his first clearing on the Swannanoa, near "Patton's Mills." He was the first county surveyor of Buncombe, and held the position for many years.

Zebulon Baird, the grandfather of General R. B. and Senator Z. B. Vance, came to the county in 1793, with Beadon Baird, in the first four-wheeled wagon ever seen in the county. He built the first store-house, court-house, and jail on the present site of Asheville, and represented Buncombe county in both branches of the Legislature. The Messrs. Baird engaged in merchandising, and imported the first "jewsharps" to the county, and these became dangerous rivals to the gourd fiddles and corn-stalk bows then in vogue.

James Patton, born in County Derry, Ireland, in 1756, came to America in 1783, to Buncombe in 1792, and to Asheville in 1814, where he built the first frame house erected in the place, at the corner of South Main and Eagle streets. The house was afterwards enlarged and became the once famous Eagle Hotel. Mr. Patton was a man of great industry, thrift, and probity, and accumulated a large fortune. In 1791 he entered into a partnership with Andrew Erwin, and after twenty years of partnership they are said to have dissolved and made settlement of a large estate in one day!

The first wagon road through the western section was constructed in 1790. It crossed the gap at the present long tunnel of the Southern Railway, came down the valley to where Biltmore is now situated, thence through what are now Valley, Oak, and Charlotte streets, out by Deake's Greenhouse, where it struck across to the Beaver Dam road, thence to Reems creek down the French Broad.

In 1800 a turnpike road was chartered to run from Paint Rock to Greenville, S. C., by Saluda Gap. This was completed in 1828 and became a great thoroughfare. About 1805 a post route was established on the recently constructed road through Buncombe, and the post-office at Asheville, in 1806 was made the distributing office for Georgia, Tennessee, and the two Carolinas. George Swain, who came to Asheville in the winter of 1795–6 from Georgia, took charge of the office in the autumn of 1806, his commission, however, bearing date January 1, 1807. He was the second postmaster of Asheville, and it is said that during a period of twenty years he was never absent on the arrival of a mail, and that every letter was distributed with his own hand. He was the father of David L. Swain, who was born on Beaver Dam in 1801, and was prepared for college at Newton Academy. David Swain was the first boy west of the Ridge to enter the State University, where he remained only three weeks, on account of lack of funds. He read law under Chief Justice Taylor, of North Carolina; represented Buncombe county in 1824–5–6; was Solicitor of Edenton Circuit in 1827; returned to the House in 1828–9; was Judge of the Supreme Court in 1831–2; was Governor in 1833–4–5; and was President of the State University for more than twenty-five years. He was also a member of the Board of Public Improvements, and is justly classed as one of the greatest and ablest of North Carolina's sons.

Colonel Andrew Erwin, who has been mentioned in connection with James Patton, came to Asheville in 1803, and succeeded to the business of Jeremiah Cleveland, merchant and innkeeper. At this time Asheville consisted of less than a dozen log houses. D. K. Bennett, in his Chronology of North Carolina, published in 1858, says of Colonel Erwin: "He was a man of extraordinary energy and enterprise, and great strength of mind," and "may be justly considered the incipient founder of Asheville. . . . He was the first postmaster, and throughout the entire period of his citizenship foremost in every effort for the improvement of the town and county."

The Rev. George Newton, the first Presbyterian minister who settled on the west side of the Blue Ridge, is believed to have been the founder and first pastor of the three churches of Swannanoa, Asheville and Reems Creek, previous to 1797. In the early part of 1797 he moved to the spot about one mile south of Asheville, now on the road to Biltmore, where a frame building was erected for him. A short distance south of this a log house, known as Union Academy, stood, from 1797 to about 1809. This was demolished, and in the autumn of 1810 a brick building took its place. By act of the General Assembly the name of the school was changed to Newton Academy, and here Mr. Newton taught a classical school from 1797 to 1814. The school was a famous one throughout the western section. Lack of space forbids an extended mention of Rev. Samuel Edney, a consecrated man of God, who, with Jonathan Bird, was sent by the Methodists to what was then called the Black Mountain Circuit, including all the western part of the State and a portion of Tennessee—the "far West" in 1792. For a number of years he preached monthly at Newton Academy, and the first campmeeting ever held in the county was on his possessions. Finding that he was unable to govern a number of slaves which he inherited and raised, he parted with them. Once while preaching the funeral sermon of one of a large family named Stepp, he unintentionally gave great offense to the family by exclaiming: "Yes! and after all these warnings from God, you will go on, step by step, till you all go down to hell!" Rev. James Askew, born in 1778, was an early settler on Spring Creek, and was one of the pioneer Methodist ministers for a long period. He died in 1852.

Rev. Humphrey Posey, a pioneer Baptist in the western section, was noted for his great originality and mental force. Among others, who made this section rich in strong deeds and by their "walk and conversation," may be mentioned General Philip Brittain, who suggested the name for Henderson county; Colonel John Clayton, James Johnson, the Revolutionary soldier and man of God; Colonel J. Barnett, Colonel Ben. Davidson, Captain Thomas Foster, Colonel James M. Alexander, Colonel James M. Lowry, James Gudger, George Jones, John Woodfin, Colonel John Miller, and the original and hardy Captain Thomas Case; while, in addition to these, such names as Baird, Weaver, Whitson, Brevard, Vance, Blackstock, and many others have left an indelible impress by the industry, enterprise and sturdy character of themselves and their descendants.

The opening of the roads already mentioned gave a tremendous impetus to trade, and Asheville, being also the distributing point for mails, became a trading post of considerable importance. In those early days in the "woods," hardy courage, shrewd business ability, thrift, and sturdy self-reliance were needed for worldly success, and these qualities were not lacking in the pioneer traders of Asheville. James Patton, J. McC. Smith, and Andrew Erwin have already been mentioned. To these may be added Jeremiah Cleveland, George Jones, William R. Smith, James W. Patton, Montraville Patton, J. T. Poor, Samuel and Alfred Chunn, W. D. Rankin and others, who in succeeding years traded with the surrounding country; and trade was lively—the pioneers, when not fighting Indians, had an eye to the main chance and exchanged wares for valuable furs and skins. As the country settled up, the products of the farm were exchanged for the various articles kept in the "general stores" of the day. Colonel A. T. Davidson relates that in 1832 his father sent him to Asheville from Haywood county to exchange beeswax and other products for clover seed, and this was the first clover ever planted in Haywood; and James M. Edney, in the Asheville Messenger, of 1850, says, in an article on Hot Springs: "On our way down we met 373 head of Kentucky cattle in one drove; and at the Springs saw in another drove 400 ducks."

From 1803 to 1844 the number of buildings in Asheville nearly doubled. The town was incorporated in 1833; still there were less than a score of houses in 1844, and all these were on or near Main street. It was at the old Buck Hotel that Colonel Davidson, then a mere lad, stopped. A famous hostelry it was in those days and for many years, and is still standing at the northeast corner of North Main and College streets. In 1844 there was no building on the east side of Main street between the old Buck and Woodfin street, and only a small building on the Woodfin place. Where the old Carolina House now stands, was a blacksmith's shop owned by Mr. Peter Stradley, who lived in a house back of the shop.

Before the 40's John Dickson, D.D., M.D., conducted a young ladies' seminary in the Johnston House, corner of Church street and Patton avenue, which was torn down in 1895, to make way for the Drhumor Block. In this school Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman in America ever granted a medical diploma, taught. It seems a curious coincidence that just fifty years later the first female physician to practice in Asheville began her duties with her office within a few yards of that old brick building. The Dickson School was successfully conducted for many years and took high rank as an institution of learning.

The only building in 1844 on College street was one on the Davidson place, while the only one east of the Woodfin House was a Methodist parsonage. The land northeast of the court-house was used as a parade ground for the militia. On South Main there was a frame store building owned by Montraville Patton, and the building on the northeast corner of Eagle and Main streets was occupied by Dr. Hardy.

Part of the Eagle Hotel, which was the first three-story building erected in Buncombe county, was then standing. Where Powell & Snider's store now stands, A. B. Chunn had a house. Battery Park Hill, then known as Battery Porter, was at that time "in the country," and as late as 1872 the boys of the village were accustomed to shoot squirrels there. In addition to the schools already mentioned, Colonel Lee's school for boys was a noted one, and many of the best citizens of the Carolinas were educated by him. Colonel Lee came from South Carolina and opened his school in a large brick house built by himself. This was situated on the Swannanoa and was known as The Lodge, which afterwards became the hospitable summer home of Mr. William Patton. Colonel Lee moved from The Lodge to Chunn's Cove in 1847, and there continued his school until the beginning of the war between the States, when, with eight sons and many of his pupils, he enlisted on the Southern side. Another school which has passed away was one where girls were taught by Mrs. Morrison and Miss Cozzins, and was situated on Haywood street, where W. H. Penland's home now stands.

It is well said that the character of a town is judged by its churches. Of the four great Protestant bodies, the Presbyterians were the first to occupy Asheville. James Patton, who has already been frequently mentioned and without a reference to whose public-spirited liberality a history of Asheville would be incomplete, united with Samuel Chunn in donating a beautiful plat of ground covered with splendid oaks, where the first church, a brick building, was erected. It occupied the present spot of the First Presbyterian Church. The Methodists first occupied a schoolhouse, which was situated on the site of the present Methodist Episcopal Church, South. This was replaced by a large frame building, and this by the present brick building. The Episcopalians had at first only occasional services by travelling clergymen. In 1847 Rev. James Buxton came as rector, and, by faithful service extending over a period of more than forty years, established for himself a warm place in the hearts of the people. The property now owned by Trinity Parish was donated by James W. Patton and a brick church was built in 1849. This was replaced by the larger church now standing on the same spot.

To the unshaken determination of the Rev. Thomas Stradley, who for many years was almost the only Baptist in this neighborhood, that denomination is indebted in large measure for the establishment of a church and congregation. The First Baptist Church, now occupying the old Vance property, where Zeb Vance first opened his law office, represents, with several other churches in the city, the outcome of Mr. Stradley's untiring devotion.

From eighteen houses in 1844, Asheville grew, by 1870, to a town of 1,500 people. By 1880 the population had grown to 2,610. The Western North Carolina Railroad came in 1880, and since that time Asheville has increased, until to-day the people within her borders number 12,832. The advent of the railroad, however, did not mark the beginning of Asheville's reputation as a leading resort both for health-seekers and for those who wished to escape the depressing heat of summer. For considerably more than half a century, wealthy planters and others from the South have come here to enjoy the enchanting scenery, the cool summers, and the life-giving air. E. J. Aston, Esq., gave a great impetus to Northern travel to Asheville by publishing a pamphlet on the climate, scenery, agricultural resources, and mineral wealth of Western North Carolina. However much others may have labored for the upbuilding of the city, no one will dispute that E. J. Aston's untiring persistence in advertising Asheville and vicinity, his sturdy devotion to her interests, and his splendid example as a noble and upright citizen, should forever enshrine him in the affections and memory of our people.

Christian Reid, in her charming descriptive novel, "The Land of the Sky," written many years before the railroad added to Asheville's advantages, says of the place: "It was less a town than a collection of country seats, scattered irregularly and picturesquely over innumerable hills." And again she adds that there was an absence of "the stagnation and depressing village air one knows so well." Space forbids lingering too long over the period from 1840 to 1860, a period of peace and prosperity, of unlimited hospitality, of culture and refinement of the kind that did not weaken character. Of modern push and progress there was none; neither was there poverty. With as brief a mention as possible of that period the reader must be content. To speak of the "natives" of that period as if they were fit subjects for a dime museum, and to regard a squalid cabin as the type of their mountain home, is to show an ignorance that is ludicrous. The same may be said of those who speak similarly of the people and houses of to-day, though both suffered sadly in the late war, and it has taken time to rebuild their desolated homes and hopes. The names of the early settlers of Western North Carolina attest, no less strongly than the records show, the large element of Scotch-Irish which settled in our mountains, and whose descendants to-day are worthy sons of a stock than which there is no more brave, sturdy, and upright in all that goes to make good citizens. A "home-keeping" people, content with a sufficiency, they have the same spirit of their ancestors, who, with Sevier, Boone, and others opened the West for settlement in the face of immense dangers and discouragements, and despite the whimperings of the East. Direct descendants of those whose intense energy helped to blaze the way for and make possible the control of the Mississippi river and the trans-Mississippi territory, there is in this people a sturdy Americanism, unmixed with foreign elements.

Of some of the Asheville homes of the "long ago" brief mention may be made. To the south was Swannanoa Hill, now the residence of Major Breese, where lived the popular and able Dr. Hardy in princely style, surrounded by all the beauty that nature, adorned and unadorned, could give. Farther north and opposite to this was the residence of Dr. John Dickson, who lived on and improved the property now owned by Mr. James M. Campbell. Nearer to Asheville was Belleview, inherited by Mrs. Joshua Roberts, daughter of one of Buncombe's first settlers. This was afterwards purchased by Dr. Hardy. On a neighboring hill lived Dr. Tennant in the house now known as Mountain Cottage. Between Belleview and Swannanoa Hill lived Dr. Foster in the then handsome retreat, now known as the Baird property. Nearer the center of the town stood the beautiful Patton home. The beautiful home now owned by Dr. Burroughs was formerly part of the Woodfin estate, and was famous for its luxurious surroundings and the hospitality dispensed. The Rankin homestead and Mr. John Woodfin's, now the Fagg property, deserve more than passing mention. On College street stood the Morrison home and the old Vance property, the latter now occupied by the First Baptist Church. On Church street were the Buxton, Aston, and Johnston homes. In the western section were the homes of Philetus and Joshua Roberts. The Ravenscroft Building and Asheville Female College, the latter including on its grounds a part of the present Oaks Hotel as a boarding hall, have their places in these records of former days. The old McDowell place (now Mr. Garrett's), Antler Hall, The Rest, Azalea, and Murphy's should not be omitted. The Eagle Hotel has already been mentioned—a great resort in its day. Deaver's Springs, now White Sulphur, five miles from town; the Warm Springs, which have since become Hot; and Alexander's, were widely popular. The Asheville Messenger of 1850 has a very interesting article by James M. Edney on Warm Springs, Paint Rock, and The Chimneys. An idea of the popularity of the Springs at that time and earlier may be gained from a quotation from the article mentioned: " . . . In 1831 they became the property of James Patton, and have been used, owned, and occupied by James W. and John E. Patton, his sons, ever since. These gentlemen have greatly improved and popularized them. The present building is a most beautiful one; 230 feet long, two stories high, with a piazza fronting the river, studded with thirteen massive columns, twenty feet in height. The dining-room is 40 by 80 feet; the bar, ball, and dancing-rooms are all airy, spacious and comfortable. In addition to this, there are six other small brick buildings for families and single gentlemen, all beautifully situated on a level surface or green lawn, in a fine grove of locust and other forest trees, set out by the proprietors.

["The ride from Asheville to the Hot Springs, along the valley of the beautiful and historic French Broad river, is the most picturesque in America."]

SCENE ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The establishment accommodates comfortably 250 persons, and 240 can be seated at the dining tables at one time. The improvements were made at great expense, and the main building, with a stable 60 by 160 feet, were burned down September 18, 1838; but, by great efforts, were reopened July 1, 1839." In the Messenger of 1851, by the same writer, is an interesting article descriptive of an ascent of Black Mountain. In the article the writer states that he and A. S. Merrimon climbed the two highest balsams on top of the mountain and gave three cheers each, in succession, "for the United States, Millard Fillmore and William A. Graham, the Old North State, Professor Mitchell, Mountain Boys, and Buncombe Lassies."

A history of Asheville and Buncombe would be incomplete without a mention of Colonel David Coleman, a gentleman of great learning and legal ability. So, too, of Nicholas W. Woodfin, with his caustic wit but generous heart, who in his day was regarded as the ablest lawyer at the Asheville bar and one of the greatest criminal lawyers that North Carolina has produced. He was a member of the convention of May, 1861, which passed the ordinance of secession.

Zeb Vance, legislator, Governor, Representative, and Senator, the great commoner, the idol of North Carolina, the pride of Buncombe, needs no commendation or mention that could make him better known or better loved.

Dr. J. G. Hardy and Dr. W. L. Hilliard must be mentioned, the two physicians who for so many years displayed their splendid abilities and were held by the entire community in so high and affectionate esteem.

An extended history of Asheville and vicinity during the war period, though richly deserved, cannot be made in the limits of a short sketch. On April 12, 1861, the Buncombe Riflemen left Asheville for Raleigh, and reached there in time to form part of the first regiment under Colonel D. H. Hill, and were on their way to Virginia before the act of secession was passed. The company consisted of about one hundred men, with W. W. McDowell as captain; W. M. Hardy, James A. Patton and G. H. Gregory as lieutenants. They took part in the first battle of the war, the battle of Bethel, on June 10, 1861. When their time of enlistment, six months, expired, members of the company quickly enlisted in other regiments. Some of them, under Captain J. M. Young, joined the 11th Regiment, and were afterwards almost completely destroyed at Gettysburg.

The second company from Buncombe was the Rough and Ready Guards, which left Asheville May 3, 1861, officered by Z. B. Vance, captain; P. W. Roberts, J. M. Gudger and S. S. Brown, lieutenants. On a reorganization of the company at a later period, Captain Vance became colonel of the 26th Regiment; P. W. Roberts of the 14th; J. M. Gudger captain of the Rough and Readys; Frank M. Haney, Thomas D. Johnston, George W. Murray, lieutenants. The first Buncombe boy killed during the war was Willie Hardy, son of Dr. J. F. E. Hardy. He was shot dead at First Manassas while carrying dispatches across the field, and his body now lies a little north of the Asheville Library Building.

Of the last years of the war the less said the better. A mention of the atrocious deeds of deserters from both armies would only reopen wounds scarcely yet healed.

It remains now to speak of Asheville of to-day, which dates from the advent of the railroad in 1880. Of the great impetus given to travel to this section by means of the advertising done by E. J. Aston, mention has already been made. This, with the railroads, was influential in advertising the advantages of Asheville and Western North Carolina to outsiders from all over this country, Canada, and parts of Europe. With her miles of paved streets, her four banks (two National), her churches, her fine system of public schools, her well equipped private schools, her business college, the elegant hotels which can easily accommodate from 1,200 to 1,500 people, the miles of street railways, the morning and afternoon daily papers, the Library, the Opera House (the finest in the State), the water-works and sewer system, the electric and gas lighting, the telephone exchange, the fire department, the associations and clubs of various names and kinds, the factories, the splendid business houses, the Federal Building, the City Hall, with its fine market accommodations, Asheville takes rank at once as a city which for push and pluck is not anywhere surpassed. For its size, the city is perhaps the most cosmopolitan in the United States. This is not surprising to those who meet here people from every point of the compass. Stagnation in such an atmosphere is impossible.

It is not the intention of the historian to boom the city, but simply to relate facts as they exist. The fact that in the last year upward of $400,000 worth of business blocks and residences have been erected, is an index that Asheville is not asleep even in the day when "hard times" are cried. It is a matter of astonishment to visitors to note how many of the people, who come to Asheville for a short visit, decide to remain permanently. The result of this decision is seen in the neat, and often elegant, homes which are being constructed in all parts of the city at all [illegible]of the year. Of the climatic advantages of this section one need [illegible]y speak.

THE FRANKLIN PRINTING AND PUBLISHING CO.
GEO. W. HARRISON, STATE PRINTER, Manager.
1896.

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1896, by J. S. McIlwaine, at Washington, D. C., in the office of the Librarian of Congress.

INTRODUCTION.

The publisher of this Directory has used great care in its compilation, keeping in view the value of thoroughness and accuracy, and every effort has been made to issue a reliable Directory. The difficulty of such work in Asheville will be appreciated when it is remembered that, practically speaking, "new ground" had to be worked.

A street directory, even under favorable circumstances, is necessarily imperfect, but in the case of Asheville's many crooked streets, some of which are laid off with an irregularity that surpasses the biblical street sarcastically called "straight," it is impossible to claim absolute accuracy. Nor should it be forgotten that very many of the houses are either incorrectly numbered or not numbered at all. The names of the residents include all over 16 years old except matrons, and precaution has been taken to rigidly exclude those who are not strictly bona fide residents within the city limits. Separate alphabetical lists of names are given of Biltmore, Victoria, West Asheville, Montford, and Woolsey.

The census given is as accurate as conscientious care could make it. Had temporary residents who are here for six and twelve months at a time, been counted, the total population would be much larger. The floating population of Asheville is very large. The census shows that Asheville has a population of 12,832. Including the suburbs the figures stand at 14,933, and including the floating population, which is usually counted in such a census, the figure would be about 2,000 more.

The History of Asheville and Vicinity, the miscellaneous information concerning the State and city government, societies, etc., and the general statistics were compiled by Prof. J. D. Eggleston, of thiscit y. In this work, also, there was practically a new field to be worked, and the author believes that in future directories of Asheville the rough outline given may prove of value chiefly as a nucleus for superior work along this line.

Finally, the publisher tenders his sincere thanks to the citizens of Asheville who have, by advice and substantial interest, made this work possible ; to The Citizen, Gazette and other papers for their constant encouragement and aid ; and to J. E. Rankin, cashier of Battery Park Bank, whose interest in all that makes for the good of the city is unfailing. The generosity of the city is also duly appreciated for subscribing to six directories.

Topography.

The city nestles in the mountains on an elevated broken plateau 250 feet above the French Broad river, and is protected by a range of mountains on the east. The plateau forms an undulating surface of about two miles from east to west, and of unlimited extent north and south. The mean elevation above the sea level is 2,389 feet.

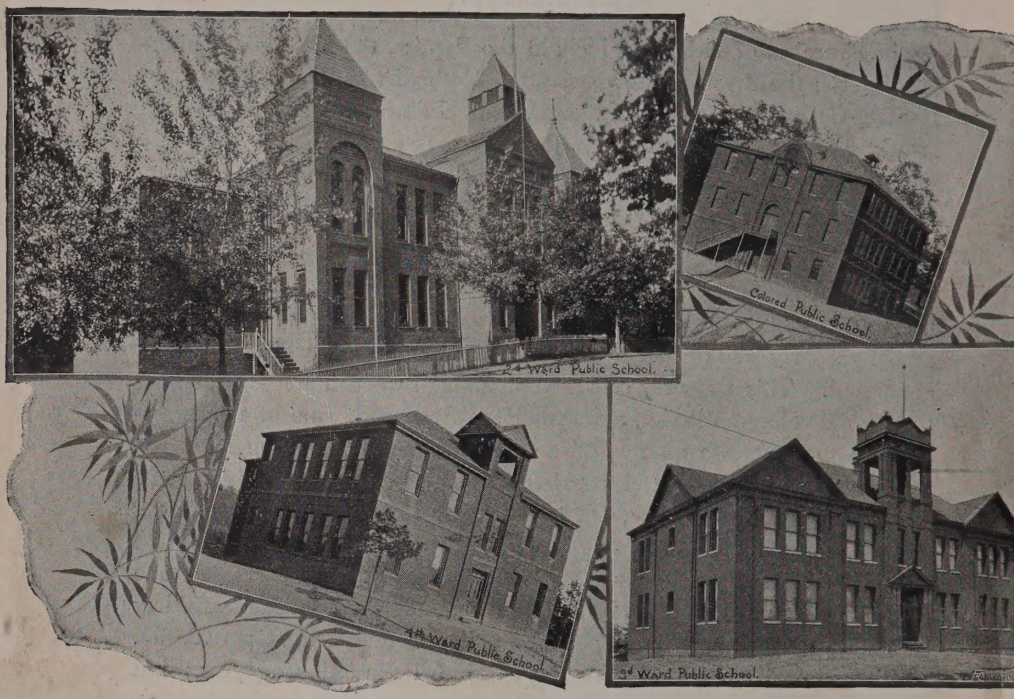
Churches.

The churches of Asheville include the Baptist, the Methodist Episcopal, South; the Presbyterian, Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal, Christian, Roman Catholic, Jewish, Lutheran, and Unitarian. The names and locations of each will be found in the Directory proper.

Schools—Public.

The city of Asheville was made a special school district in 1887. A tax of sixteen and two-thirds cents on each hundred dollars of listed property, and fifty cents on each poll, was levied, and the city's public school property was turned over to a school committee, which had been appointed. This property consisted of a small wooden house belonging to the old colored district, a vacant lot and a small sum of money belonging to the white district. The old military academy on Montford avenue was purchased and repaired with the colored building. The schools opened in January, 1888, with more than 600 white applicants and 300 colored. The building on Orange street was completed by the fall of 1888, at a cost of about $11,000. Ten white teachers and one colored were added, and 1,200 children were admitted. A tax of thirty cents on property and ninety cents on polls was levied to raise $12,000, which was badly needed. This was continued the following year; but the rate was afterwards made twenty cents on property and sixty cents on polls, the maximum allowed by the amendment passed by the legislature of 1889. The legislature of 1891 passed a bill authorizing the City Council to issue bonds of the city to the amount of $25,000. This act was ratified by an almost unanimous vote of the people. Three handsome brick buildings were erected in the summer of 1892—the Montford, Bailey, and Catholic Hill buildings. Another issue of $25,000 in bonds was made, and to-day the city has four handsome brick buildings in which to accommodate her children. The school tax received from the city is about $11,000 and from the county about $5,000. The schools are free of debt, are well equipped with modern conveniences, are thoroughly progressive, and are patronized by every class of society.

There are twenty-seven teachers, twenty-one white and six colored, and one superintendent who devotes his entire time to the schools. It has always been the policy of the committee to choose teachers according to fitness, regardless of geographical locality or sectarian views; and this wise policy has led to the selection of a fine corps of teachers, who keep in touch with every educational move. The enrollment for the session of 1895–6 was 1,581.



Schools—Private.

One of the oldest institutions of learning in the western portion of the State is the Asheville Female College, which is an outgrowth of the Dickson Seminary, already referred to. The present building was erected by Dr. James Atkins and the late J. A. Branner, in 1888. The school is well equipped with modern conveniences, and has always been well patronized.

The Misses Champion's School for Girls was opened in January, 1886, and has been successful from its beginning, owing to the refined culture and surroundings, and thorough instruction.

The Ravenscroft High School for Boys was established in 1850, and commands a good patronage.

There is probably no school in the State more useful than the Home Industrial for Girls. This school was given by Dr. L. M. Pease, in 1887, to the Woman's Executive Committee of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. The property was then valued at $40,000. The name of the school indicates the character of its work, which is very thorough. The amount of good that the school has already accomplished is incalculable. Miss Florence Stephenson is its efficient manager. Dr. Pease is well known as the founder of the Five Points Mission in New York. He is correctly regarded as the apostle of industrial education in Western North Carolina. His self-denying and godly life, his splendid liberality, his single-hearted devotion to the good of his fellowmen, his grand character, should immortalize him in the hearts of the people among whom he has lived and labored for many years.

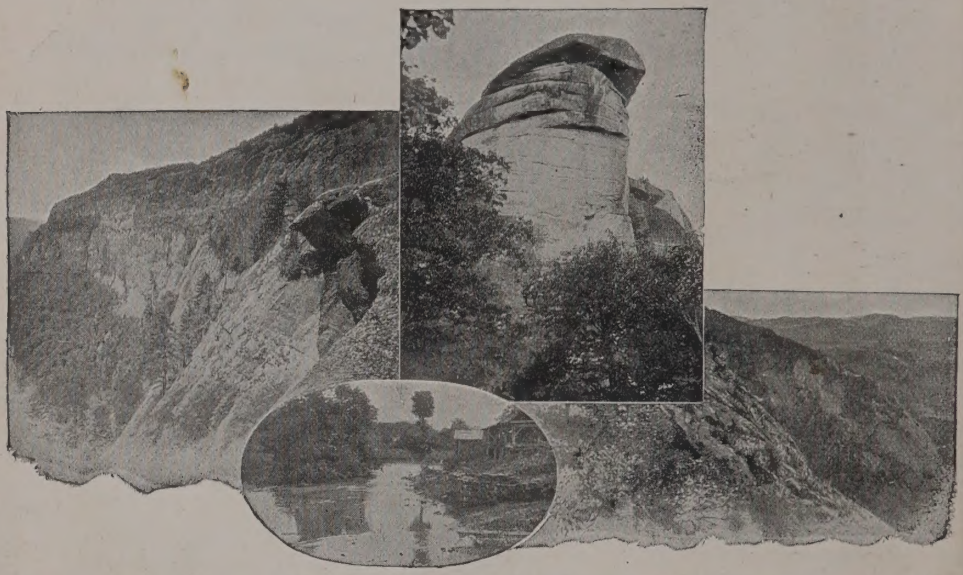
The Normal and Collegiate Institute, though separate from the Industrial School, is also owned by the Presbyterian Board. The school is well equipped in every particular, and during the last session had 215 pupils. Dr. Thomas Lawrence is the President of the Institute.

Bingham's School, founded in 1793 by the grandfather of Major Robert Bingham, the present principal, was, until 1890, located in Orange county, North Carolina. The school is situated on a bluff overlooking French Broad river, and commands one of the finest views in this entire section. The buildings are equipped with every possible convenience for a military school, and from a sanitary point of view are unsurpassed. The instruction is thorough in every way.

One of the most useful institutions in the city is the Southern Business College, under Professor M. M. Lemmond. Thorough training is given in a business course, stenography, typewriting, penmanship, etc.



[1"On every side rise hill upon hill and mountain upon mountain, with many a Heaven-aspiring peak among them."]

SCENE ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

The Skyland Institute, under Professor J. S. Dickey, which is now entering its third year, is well patronized by the people of the city, and affords excellent facilities for instruction for boys and girls.

The Asheville Free Kindergarten Association has four kindergarten schools in the city, three white and one colored. The association is doing great good, and is conducted entirely by private subscription. (See Local Charities.)

The Asheville Farm School is situated ten miles east of the city. It consists of 420 acres, purchased about three and one-half years ago, at a cost of $14,500. Twenty thousand dollars have since been expended.

The school opened on November 2, 1894, with about twenty boys, this being all that could be accommodated at that time. Over one hundred can now be provided for. The school is meant to give the boys a thorough elementary education, to teach them all kinds of farm work and house work, except cooking, and to teach carpentering.

Flower Mission.—The Flower Mission, which began its modest work in the spring of 1884, was organized as auxiliary to the State branch of that department of the National W. C. T. U., its primary work being confined to the sphere which its name indicates. An extension, however, has been made, and the original little Flower Mission band has grown into an associated charity organization. The central office of the Mission is in the City Hall. The work is thoroughly and systematically organized. The city is divided into districts, and wherever suffering and want appear, the Mission sends its representatives. By systematic, but kindly, investigation, every case of reported need is looked into, and the abuses of beggary are thus avoided.

Mission Hospital.—The Mission Hospital is an outgrowth of the Flower Mission, and had its start in 1885, with the rent of only two rooms assured. In 1887 the board of managers bought the Hawley place, which, with a few alterations, was used as a hospital for five years The work grew, and a new building with modern appliances became absolutely necessary. Through the generous offer of Miss Laura Houghteling, in 1891, of $1,500 as a contribution to a new building, the managers were enabled to start a financial campaign sufficiently successful to justify the erection of a new building, which was ready for occupation December 18, 1892. The hospital still has a debt of $4,000 on it, and is dependent to a very large extent on private contributions. Too much praise cannot be given the managers and the efficient medical staff for their earnest work in the upbuilding of this much needed charity.

Children's Home.—The Buncombe County Children's Home grew out of a conversation between Mr. J. E. Rankin, Chairman of the County Commissioners, and Miss Fanny L. Patton, in November, 1889, when the latter had asked for a poor woman and two children admission to the almshouse. Mr. Rankin, always ready to assist in every good work and to use his strong influence for the growth of the city and county, suggested an appeal to the commissioners; and at their next meeting, accompanied by Captain J. P. Sawyer, Miss Patton induced them to appoint a committee to bring forward plans for the establishment of a home for destitute and friendless children until suitable private homes could be found for them. Captain J. P. Sawyer, Captain T. W. Patton, and J. E. Rankin assisted in the presentation of the plans. There was a crying need for such an institution. It was determined by the committee to ask for only $600 from the county, and to appeal to the generosity of the citizens of Asheville for further aid. The response was prompt and hearty. Through the assistance of the managers of the Mission Hospital, a portion of the Hospital grounds was obtained free of cost for a term of five years. The new home was opened March 11, 1890, and an act of the legislature, passed in March, 1891, legalized the establishment and maintenance at public expense of such homes in Buncombe county. The home has done a good that cannot be estimated. Miss Patton, active in every good work, may well be pleased with the result of an idea which has saved so many children from ignorance and vice and given them a fair opportunity for independent self-support.

Asheville Reformatory.—The Asheville Reformatory was made an adjunct of the city prison at the instigation and under the administration of Captain T. W. Patton, during his mayoralty. A suitable police matron was employed by the city, whose duty it is to supervise the women prisoners and keep them profitably employed. A large room in the City Hall is devoted to this purpose.

Lindley Training School.—In connection with the Reformatory should be mentioned the Lindley Training School, which is situated near Asheville. About five years ago Mrs. C. G. Mitchell was deeply impressed with the need of a rescue home, and by her influence and the contributions of friends in and out of Asheville, the school was built.

W. C. T. U.—The Asheville W. C. T. U. was organized by Miss Willard in 1883, and has been efficiently active since its foundation in all lines of charity work and in enlightening the public mind in regard to the evils of intemperance.

Asheville Free Kindergarten.—The A. F. K. Association was incorporated in 1892, when, through the generosity of Mr. George W. Pack, a school building was erected and given the association. The Colored Kindergarten was opened in the Colored Young Men's Institute through the generosity of Mr. George W. Vanderbilt, when an appeal was made to him in the autumn of 1894.

S. P. C. A.—The North Carolina Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was organized at Asheville, April 1, 1890, with H. H. Lyons as its founder. The society, though a small one, has accomplished much good.

Parochial Schools, Colored—The first organized effort for the education of the colored people through the channels of charity was the parochial school of the Episcopal church, opened in 1870 by Miss A. L. Chapman, of Rochester, N. Y., who was succeeded after two years by Rev. Mr. Berry. On Eagle street Rev. C. B. Dusenberry, of the Presbyterian church, has a parochial school, and on Valley street, Rev. H. S. McDuffey, of the Protestant Episcopal church, has one. In Victoria a combined chapel and schoolhouse was erected about six years ago, through the generosity of Mr. Taylor, of Ohio, and a flourishing day school has been kept up.

Industrial School, Colored.—In 1885 Rev. Dr. L. M. Pease erected a building for an industrial school on College street, and opened it in the autumn of that year. The school was in the next year deeded to the HOTEL BERKELEY.

Woman's Board of Missions of the M. E. Church, and has been in continuous successful operation. Additional quarters are now being erected.

Young Men's Institute.—In 1892 a Mr. Stephens, principal of the colored graded school, appealed to Mr. George W. Vanderbilt for aid in erecting a colored Y. M. C. A. The generous response was the fine and substantial building which is fitted up with stores, offices, a large lecture hall, a library and reading-room, parlor and school-room, and the office of the superintendent.

Y. M. C. A.—The Y. M. C. A. was organized in 1889. A gymnasium, lecture-room, parlors, boys' rooms, bath-rooms, and reading rooms were opened, and the association has been a powerful factor for good since its foundation. A small library is being accumulated and the leading reviews and papers are on its tables.

Fire Department.

The Asheville Fire Department, though voluntary, is a very efficient one, and the promptness, energy, and courage of the members have saved the city thousands of dollars. Prior to 1882 the Bucket Brigade existed. In that year the city purchased a hook and ladder truck and a small hand-truck with two small chemical extinguishers attached. Captain J. P. Sawyer was made chief of the department in 1883. On August 1, 1894, Hose Co. No. 1 was organized with H. G. Fagg as captain. The city then had two reels and 800 feet of hose. In March, 1890, two auxiliary companies were organized. They were then known as the North Asheville and West Asheville companies, and are now known as Companies Nos. 1 and 2. From June, 1892, to June, 1893, the department was in a disorganized condition, owing to certain differences between the company and the city authorities. The chiefs have been Captain J. P. Sawyer, George S Powell and J. R. Rich; Captain Sawyer is the present chief. The position was refused by W. F. Randolph, who for a number of years was in the department. There are now twenty-one members of Hose Company No. 1, four members of Company No. 2, five members of Company No. 3, and twelve members of the Hook and Ladder. Since 1892, with a short exception, L. W. Jeanneret has been the able and efficient secretary of the department.

Asheville Library.

Asheville Library.—The Asheville Library was organized January 20, 1879. A reading circle, which had been in active operation for two years, led to the idea of the Library. Probably the most active workers in arousing a substantial interest were Misses Anna C. Aston, Fanny L. Patton, and Anna Chunn. The Library was not allowed to stand still even in location, and was moved from place to place until, through the generosity of Captain T. W. Patton and Miss Patton, heirs-at-law, a deed was made to the Library Association in November, 1893, whereby the plat of land on which the Library building now stands came into its possession. The Library consists of about 3,000 volumes. The books are taken out by subscription, but the reading-room is free to the public.

Asheville Light Infantry.

The A. L. I. was organized March 4, 1888. Its first captain was John H. Barnard; 1st lieutenant, Ed. Weddin; 2d lieutenant, R. P. Johnston. Its second captain was Duff Merrick; third, T. M. Kimberly; fourth, White G. Smith (now major 2d Battalion, 4th Regiment, N. C. State Guard). The present captain is T. W. Bookhart; 1st lieutenant, R. S. Stewart; 2d lieutenant, A. E. Rankin. The appropriation was, until changed by the last legislature, $250 per annum, when it was reduced to $150, which is used to supply uniforms, etc. The company is aided by the city, and consists of between fifty and sixty members.

Clubs.

Clubs.—Asheville has for years boasted of fine social clubs. The Cosmopolitan and the Carolina held sway during the days of Asheville's most rapid growth. The Cosmopolitan was reorganized and became the Asheville Club. The Carolina merged into the Asheville, and with its elegant quarters in the recently constructed Drhumor Block, the Asheville Club will continue in an increased degree to be one of the finest social features of the city. The Swannanoa Country Club is a great addition to the social life of the city. The modest but elegant club-house on Battery Park Hill is excellent in every appointment, while the Hunting Lodge, two and a half miles southwest of the city, is a popular resort for those members and guests who patronize the chase.

DRHUMOR BLOCK.

Newspapers.

The first newspaper published in Asheville is said to have been the Highland Messenger, edited by Rev. M. McAnally. Among the papers which have lived and died are: The Asheville Messenger, The Asheville Spectator, The Asheville News, The Asheville Democrat. The two leading papers to-day are The Daily Citizen, afternoon daily and semi-weekly, and the Gazette, morning and weekly. Besides these are The State Register, weekly; State Reporter, weekly; Skyland News, weekly; Colored Enterprise, weekly; Epworth News, semi-monthly; Southern Lutheran, Southern Baptist, Tar-Heel Knight and Lyceum, monthly; and Fuller's Gleaner, occasionally.

"THE OAKS HOTEL."

Hotels, Railroads, Etc.

Hotels.—An extended mention of Asheville's hotels is not needed. Her accommodations are ample and elegant. In place of the old Buck, the Eagle and the Carolina House, have come the Battery Park and Kenilworth Inn, both known beyond the States as among the most elegant hostelries in the entire country, and the Berkeley, the Oakland Heights, the Swannanoa, the Oaks, the Asheville, Glen Rock, and others, which justly have a large and substantial patronage. The Battery Park was opened in 1886, and has constantly undergone extensive improvements to keep pace with the increased demand for room. The same may be said of Kenilworth Inn, which was opened in 1891. The old Grand Central has given place to the modern Berkeley. When it is remembered that Asheville accommodates annually about 70,000 visitors, it can be seen that her hotels and boarding-houses must have ample facilities for guests.

Railroads.—"Asheville is now approached by rail from the north via Salisbury, N. C., and Morristown, Tenn.; from the east via Salisbury; from the south via Spartanburg, S. C.; and from the west and north, west via both Murphy, N. C., and Morristown, Tenn."—Asheville, Where It Is.

SCENE ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Electric Railways.—Asheville has three electric railway systems running through every section of the city and into and through the various suburbs. One can ride from the Square to the depot, to Lookout mountain, to Sunset mountain, to the river at the foot of Bingham's Heights, and to Victoria and Biltmore.

Water-Works.—Asheville owns its own water-works, which are five miles from the city. The stand-pipe is on Beaumont, and has a capacity of 330,000 gallons. The water is obtained from the Swannanoa, which unites with the French Broad near the city limits, to the southwest. The water-power of the French Broad is estimated at 175,000 horse-power.

Street Lighting.—The city is supplied with nearly 100 lamps for street lighting, and electricity is used. Gas and electricity is furnished private houses.

Vanderbilt's Biltmore.

"With unlimited means, and a whole world to choose from, George W. Vanderbilt has selected Asheville as the one place for creating the splendid house and lordly park which his architects and engineers are now constructing. Frederick Law Olmsted, the landscape architect, who gave New York her Central Park, is directing this far more magnificent work in Western North Carolina.

"The house is being built under the direction of the eminent architect, the late Richard M. Hunt, and is a chateau of the French Renaissance, 375 feet long and 150 feet wide, modeled after the famous chateau at Blois, France.

"The Biltmore estate contains 7,917 acres, and the Pink Bed tract of Mr. Vanderbilt's hunting preserve contains 16,100 acres. An arboretum, embracing many miles of winding road, traverses the Biltmore domain, and to complete its planting 6,000,000 plants will be required, many of which are now being propagated. The number of plants already propagated in the Biltmore nurseries for use on the estate, reaches the enormous total of 4,300,000.

"When this great work is finished the result will be far the finest private country residence in the United States, and probably in the world."—Asheville, Where It Is.

Property Valuation.

1873	—	Real and personal		$ 762,329
1883		" " "		2,169,004
1893		" " "		4,685,372
1895		" " "		4,820,690

Of this last amount, $4,765,940 is owned by the white people, and $54,750 by the colored people. Taxable incomes amount to $55,025, the tax being one per cent. on this amount for State and county. The rate of tax on valuation is $1.20 for the city (20 cents of this for schools) and 90 cents for State and county (18 cents of this for schools). Taxes levied for all purposes at last assessment amounted to $101,784.74.

Winyah Sanitarium.

The Winyah is one of the most noted Sanitariums in this country, especially for the treatment of consumption. It is under the management of Dr. Karl Von Ruck, whose reputation as a specialist in the treatment of tuberculosis has given him a world-wide reputation. Every possible facility in treatment is at hand and the large patronage and remarkable cures attest the worth of the institution.

Some Facts and Figures.

The following table gives the ratio of consumption in several sections of the country. The figures indicate the number of deaths from this disease in every 1,000 deaths:

Northern New England (nearly)	250
Minnesota and California	1 50
Kentucky and Tennessee	109
Western North Carolina	30

—Asheveille, Where It Is.

Cemeteries.—The old church cemeteries have long since given way to the beautiful Riverside Cemetery, overlooking the French Broad to the northwest. The cemetery was opened in 1885.

Retrospect and Prophecy.

Such is an outline—necessarily imperfect—of Asheville from its beginnings in the last century. Her past is one of industry, thrift, and plenty in days of peace; of bravery and courageous suffering in the days of strife. Her present is full of pluck and push, and is secure. Her affairs are managed with prudence and ability by the business element of the city, a fact which insures good government. No conceivable reason exists to mar a rapid and substantial growth for the future.

STREET DIRECTORY

Asheville, North Carolina

EXPLANATION.

All streets, Avenues, etc., are arranged in alphabetical order. The numbers of the houses are arranged in order of sequence from one to the limit of the street, and the name of the occupant is given opposite each number. This department of the Directory also shows the starting point and direction of each street and Avenue, the intersecting streets and the points at which they intersect. The occupations of a few of the business and professional men have been inserted after their names. However, this was due to a misunderstanding of one of the canvassers and time has not been allowed for correction.

For the occupation of house holders, please refer to alphabetical list of names.

Court square is the central point of the City. College street and Patton Avenue divide the northern and southern sections of the City; North and South Main streets divide the eastern and western sections of the city.

WHITE G. SMITH, Ph. G.,

PHARMACIST AND CHEMIST,

60 Patton Avenue.

Prescriptions at my store are put up only by competent Pharmacists. The prescription department is separated from the main store, and no one is allowed to enter and converse with the druggist while he is compounding.

I Make a Specialty of Prescription Work.

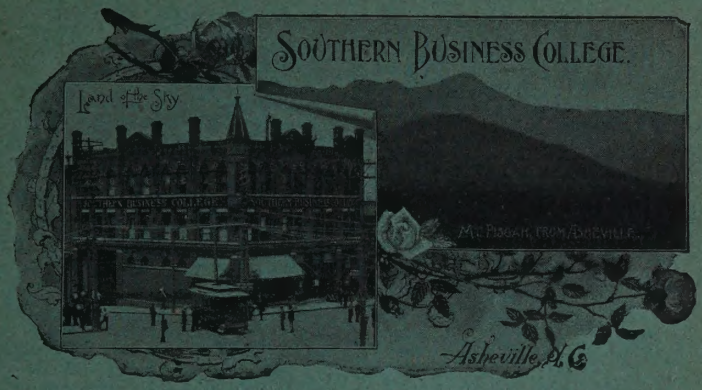
My stock of Sundries, Toilet Articles, Perfumes, Hair Brushes, Tooth Brushes, Nail Brushes, and everything in the store cannot be surpassed by any one either in quality or price. You are invited to call, examine my goods and compare prices.

I am making no great blow on my low prices, but a comparison will convince you that I am selling as low as the lowest, and my goods are all guaranteed to be just as represented or money refunded.

Yours most respectfully,

WHITE G. SMITH, Ph. G.,

60 Patton Avenue.



OPEN TO BOTH SEXES

Students Past Two Years From Seventeen States. No Vacations.

As we present the claims of this institution to the public, we do not claim that we have any particular secrets of business known by no other school, but we do claim that in point of merit and strictly up-to-date methods, that we stand fully abreast of the times with the best institutions of America. Our teachers are specialists, our equipments complete, our courses of instruction thorough and full, our location and surroundings healthful and attractive; and by honest, faithful and vigorous work we are building an institution in every way worthy of the confidence and patronage of the South.

OUR COURSES OF INSTRUCTION ARE, VIZ.:

Business Course, Shorthand and Typewriting Course, Teachers' Normal Business Course, Penmanship, Engraving and Civil Service. . . . . .

We teach the Ellis System of Bookkeeping (actual business from the start) and the new Standard System of Shorthand.

Our school is first, last and always a friend to its students, and while we do no such absurd thing as to guarantee positions, yet we can proudly compare our record with that of any school. Of our whole number of graduates during the past four years, scarcely one is now without a good position, and we have personally placed a large number into the very best positions of our country.

Students can get a round-trip railroad ticket from almost any part of the country for about one-fourth more than fare for one way.

For our handsome new catalogue, containing full particulars, testimonials, etc., address

WYETH'S LIQUID MALT EXTRACT.

CONTAINING ALL THE NUTRIENT PROPERTIES OF MALT, WITH THE LEAST POSSIBLE AMOUNT OF ALCOHOL.

We claim that our Liquid Malt Extract will be found to contain all the nutritive virtues of the best malt liquors in a higher degree than any of the largely sold liquid malts, with which we have compared it, while it is free from the stimulating effect which invariably follows their administration.

This is not a beverage, but a most agreeable and valuable nutrient, tonic and digestive agent, containing a large amount of nutritious extractive matter, and the smallest percentage of alcohol found in any liquid preparation of malt.

It is especially adapted for administration to nursing mothers and children, to patients suffering from nervous exhaustion, chilliness, etc., and particularly to those unable to digest starchy food.

Probably its greatest value is during lactation, as it not only supplies strength to meet the unusual demands upon the system at that time, but it improves the quality of the milk by increasing the amount of sugar and phosphates, nourishing the infant and sustaining the mother at the same time.
